This interprofessional intensive learning in simulation environments offers students a good and safe opportunity to practice and learn on a simplified simulated world to strengthen their skills and competencies for working in a real interprofessional environment.

ABOUT THIS COURSE

Learning of health care is among other issues a process of internalization and interprofessional co-operation where theoretical knowledge is a base to build own competence. When health care students master theoretical knowledge, it enables students to use it in different health care situations with other professionals, where practical and theoretical knowledge are in intense interplay with each other.

STUDENTS WILL EARN 5 ECTS CREDITS

- 5 Pre-course tasks to prepare of given real-life based cases. These cases will be shared beforehand. The cases handle hospital environment, home care, rehabilitation and health care situations. The patients/clients in the cases will have multiple health and welfare challenges.
